Will Be Borred.

President Tener has announced that the moss-covered trick plays will be barred from the National League after this season. Tener intends putting through a set of rules during the winter that will prevent Miller Huggins and other tricksters from winning ball games by causing one of the opposition to pull a "boner."

One of the things that influenced the big chief of the National against trickery was Huggins's little stunt, played on Appleton, the Dodger pitcher. The Cards had two men on bases, Huggins was on the coaching line for his team
